In line with the recent surge of critical interest in early psychology, the contributors read Mansfield’s work alongside figures like William James and Henri Bergson, opening up new perspectives on affect in her work. While these essays trace strands within the intellectual milieu in which Mansfield came of age, others explore the intricate interplay between Mansfield’s fiction and Freudian theory, seeing her work as emblematic of the uncanny doubling of modernist literature and psychoanalysis.

"There was not an inch of room for Lottie and Kezia in the buggy. When Pat swung them on top of the luggage they wobbled; the grandmother ' s lap was full and Linda Burnell could not possibly have held a lump of a child on hers for any distance." The seemingly perfect Burnell family is moving from one house to another, and on the surface, everything appears idyllic. But as the story develops, the tension grows, threatening to explode and expose their true nature. ' Prelude ' (1922) is evidence of Katherine Mansfield ' s short fiction genius, and it was the first short story that Virginia Wolf commissioned for her publishing house. Katherine Mansfield (1888-1923) was short story writer and poet from New Zealand, who settled in England at the age of 19. Virginia Woolf and D.H. Lawrence were among her literary friends and admirers. She died of tuberculosis at the age of 34.

A frivolous, wealthy family’s garden party continues uninterrupted by the death of a working-class neighbor.

"The other ladies consider her ' very, very fast. Her lack of vanity, her slang, the way she treated men as though she was one of them, and the fact that she didn ' t care twopence about her house and called the servant Gladys ' Glad-eyes ' , was disgraceful." Like her friend Virginia Woolf ' s ' Mrs. Dalloway ' (1925), ' At the Bay ' (1922) by Katherine Mansfield covers a single day from different points of view. In this beautifully written short story filled with rich characters and vivid imagery, we visit or revisit the Burnell family in a story about nothing and everything. Katherine Mansfield (1888-1923) was short story writer and poet from New Zealand, who settled in England at the age of 19. Virginia Woolf and D.H. Lawrence were among her literary friends and admirers. She died of tuberculosis at the age of 34.

A young Englishwoman embarks on a journey to the French front lines during the First World War in an effort to meet her lover, the " Little Corporal. " Written in a modernist style that combines and explores several narratives and perspectives, " An Indiscreet Journey " is an engaging portrayal of life and relationships during wartime. It is one of the only stories written by Katherine Mansfield that was set during the war, and was purportedly based on a similar experience of Mansfield ' s while travelling to meet her French lover on the frontlines.
